

Because this is a controversial issue, the Baker Letter
Would like you to give the House your opinion:

Question 1.:

Which of the following three alternatives would you prefer?:
(mark one)

- _____ 1. The tutor system is maintained at a cost of $20-30 per resident (per year).
- _____ 2. Baker House indicates to the Dean's Office that it is unwilling to increase payment for this service,
implying that we would be happy to keep the tutor
system as it stands now.
- _____ 3. The tutor system be abolished (retaining house-masters and junior faculty residents) at a savings of about $100 per dormitory resident.

Question 2.:

Indicate whether you would be in favor of an experiment in which no tutor is assigned to a floor next year, and the duties performed by the tutor be performed by students.

_____ (Indicate support by checking at left)

***** ***** *****

Wouldn't it be great if we could express the same arrogance to graduate schools as they send us in their letters of rejection?

Dear Sirs:

Every four years, we receive many fine offers of admission
This year, due to the high number of applications sent out, I've had an especially large and well-endowed pool of graduate schools from which to select. I am very sorry that I cannot accept your offer. You may be consoled by the knowledge that you were one of the select few schools I actually considered.

I would like to take this opportunity to wish you luck in attracting other fine students to your school. Perhaps it would be helpful to point out that more attractive financial arrangements would help there.

Yours Truly,

Mortimer Gnurd