Next (and last!) execon meeting after house meeting.

ADJOURN

THE REAL SCOOP: Actually the senior guys were hanging around the freshman quads in Baker and the junior guys still were at the Stud Center looking for chicks, so the sophomore guys, possessing the uncanny instinct common to their class, walked home with all the neighboring small liberal arts school women.

All, however, except for the small, elite group of super-nerds going off to the 6.004 Design Contest. . .

It's thursday night the first day of classes and the 1-4 (oh no, it's the EXECON!) bells are ringing. It's time to drag yourselves away from the books (ha-ha), boys and girls. Why? It's time for ... the budget meeting (ugh). Prez Alec is already there, asking for money for his have-a-beer- with-the-president-night. Jen, our VPRO, is sitting patiently, budget written up already - organized as usual. Organization - what a concept! Here comes Henry the VPIR with our milk and cookies ☺. Who's that? Why it's Mikey Morgan, Judcomm chairman, whose budget actually hit 3 digits this term! (Notice the ear-to-ear grin) Next is Dean, athletic chairman, whose budget starts as big as social's and ends... well... just ends. Get a clue Dean! Here comes Eric, VPFS, looking for duct tape. Someone help Pat. He's very weighted down with the treasury books. No, pat, we're not out of money. What are you talking about? Strolling in last as usual it's Tim and Sam Social. Stay tuned for which gets the ----- award next. I guess I forgot myself, but I'm too busy trying to get my pen to stop blotting. Have a question? Here's where to find us:

Alec Jessiman, President -621	Sam Druker, Social -630
Eric Eileras, VPFS - 318	Tim Sulzbach, Social - 519
Jen Lund, VPRO - 230	Pat Goshtigian, Treasurer - 316
Henry Houh, VPIR - 519	Lisa Rockoff, Secretary - 618
Mike Morgan, Judcomm - 227	??????????, FREP - ???

Now for the good part.

Once upon a time, not too very long ago (all of this is purely hypothetical, of course. The people in this story bear absolutely NO resemblance to real life.) there lived a moderately happy little kingdom way up high in the sky (i.e. not on the first floor). These people suffered under the rule of the benevolent sot King Don. King Don had his good points, but since the narrator can't remember them right now, let it suffice to say that King Don forced his subjects to get sloshed every Thursday night and listen to his awful singing.

Anyway, the people of the kingdom kind of began to object to this, so they appealed to the brave knight Ring Ding Jr. to lead them to a co-op. No! I mean lead them in a coup. Now, let it be known that Ring Ding Jr. couldn't find his way out of a box (but no one said that said subjects were very bright either); nevertheless he accepted the challenge. A small complication soon arose in that Ring Ding's evil, arrogant, power-hungry next door neighbor, Ding Dong, became jealous and wanted to lead the battle. However, Ring Ding, a self-proclaimed godlike soccer player, soon took care of this small, insignificant, trivial, etc. problem by pushing Ding Dong over during an IK (that's intra-kingdom) game and spraining both of Ding Dong's ankles.

Ring Ding rounded up a few of the other clowns in the kingdom (the court jester, a minstrel, a few of the "ladies-in-waiting" (and waiting, and waiting), the court yuppie, a theologian and various others) to do battle. The plan was to get King Don excessively drunk the following Thursday night and then push him through a second story window onto the ledge far below. Unfortunately, the jester was off juggling devil sticks, the minstrel was giving one or another of the ladies a back massage, the court yuppie had gone out for Chinese food (the theologian usually orders in), and just about everybody else was hung over. Pretty typical.

So Ring Ding had to go it alone. What a contest, huh? Who won this dreadful duo? I mean, duel? I don't know. (I also don't particularly care, as I'm sure you don't either.) Perhaps they're drinking still.

Ring
Ding Jr.®

King Dons

Once upon a time there was a guy. He went riding one day: He saw a dragon. He killed it. He searched the body. He came home. He married the princess. They lived happily ever after.
The end.

Elections coming soon!
Run for something!

It's 2 am in the infinite corridor. All I can hear is the steam tunnel hissing 'nerd, nerd'. I can feel the vibration of the motors of MIT doing their work while normal people are sleeping. Suddenly my calculator is floating in front of me. 'Nerd!', hiss the steam tunnels. It's dark and deserted. There are strange shadows on the wall. Wait, is that one moving? It is. It's getting larger! What is it? Oh, no, it can't be.... it is! It's ... IT'S.....

OUTGOING STATEMENT

I enjoyed this past year as secretary. I accomplished most of my goals, including that of cleaning out the secretary's closet. It sure was a pig sty! The copy machine was not as much a hassle as I thought it was going to be. It didn't break down too much even though we have been making more copies than ever before. The income has risen from $40 per week to about $70. I kept a pretty close record of where the copies were going and I came up with a deficit of about 7000 copies. This is about 25% of the total copies but I think that most of these can be explained as mostly due to bad copies. Hopefully the new secretary will keep an eye on this issue over the next year. Doing the minutes was often a pain in the neck, especially trying to write the stories, so, often I tried to find someone else to write something for them. Thanks to everyone who helped me.

I had a lot of fun going to the meetings and I loved being a part of execon.

Thanks!

Outgoing Statement - Nancy Penigin 2/24/87

I enjoyed my year on Execon and I'd like to thank my Execon for choosing me to be Treasurer. They were a wonderful group of people to work with and they made my job a lot better.
Treasurer is a lot of grunge work
but it's fun - good luck Pat.
Thanks especially to Corvill for

Thanks also to Tom and Tracy
for all their help.
And thanks to Baker for

Outgoing Statement (Social: Steve & Tom)

Weld like to thank everyone who helped us this past year. The house for being supportive and having a good time, and execcon for ~~supporting us~~ putting up with us; especially Nancy. Few people really realize how much work she does. I hope that Pat will try as hard as ~~the~~ Nancy has.

Steve and I have had a lot of fun being social chairmen. It's kind of hard to give up the position (and the keys to the liquor closet), but it's time. Some of you may wonder why neither of us ran for pres. I think I speak for both of us in saying that we're a little bit burnt out. Also, we both felt that there was ^{an excellent} ~~an adequate~~ pool of candidates to choose from without us. Anyway, we'd like to think we held our own as social chairmen, and we hope you think you got your money's worth. Best of luck to ~~the new~~ ^{the new} execcon esp. Tim & Sam; we hope you'll do a better job than we did, though it'll take a lot of work (Steve made me say that).

Short Version

Thanks everyone. Good luck Tim and Sam

Outgoing Statement

Dan - Judcom Chairman

It's been a great 2 years on Execcom. Good luck to Mikey M.

OUT GOING STATEMENT

Elliott Moore Baker once said that "Families are where we live, in castle or cabin, and where we learn about kindness and generosity. Families are love woven into a great shawl that keeps mother and father, sister and brother and me warm when all the world is cold" (June, 1946)

I think those words touch on the spirit that makes Baker house such a great place to live, and which has made the last year so enjoyable to me.

I think we've learned a lot at Baker over the past year. In a changing world almost, we've been forced to become more responsible and to learn from our mistakes.

One piece of advice for Henry (our new VDIR): I think institute relations will be more important this coming year, ~~from~~ from the real input comm-comm could provide to AEA, the renovations to the tutor's rooms which will hopefully occur this next summer, to the alcohol policy and the development of new initiatives for living groups by the office of the Dean of Student Affairs. Take these responsibilities seriously, and get good people to help you.

Congratulations to the new execs. Don't ever forget that you're making decisions on behalf of 360 people, some of whom you may not even have met. Take into consideration that they've placed their trust in you, and think before you make every decision.

Finally, thanks to everyone who helped me out this last year - to naming to name. And thanks, execs members - It's really been a great time!

2/24/87

I had a really great time as VPRO this past year. I ~~was~~ am very happy with the freshman class this year, and I think the rest of the house feels the same way. For the first time we have more women than men in the class, and I feel this is a good thing for the house.

Once again I'd like to thank everyone who helped me out during R/O. Things went smoothly and that's because so many people worked long and hard.

Sorry Blue Hills was so wet, but thanks to everyone who went - we had a fun time.

I'm also proud to say that Baker was one out of only 3 dorms that successfully hosted a seminar, and I think that speaks highly of the residents.

Good luck to Jennifer - I hope you have as much fun as I've had.

Baker House

362 Memorial Dr., Cambridge, MA 02139

I know everyone is dying to hear what happened between Don and Nancy after the door closed in the Pub film. Well, the next day they both dropped out of school (they were so in love) and got married. They said their goodbyes to Baker House and moved out to Cleveland so Don could become manager of a Dairy Queen (I think he had connections). In between having little Woodlocks Nancy worked as a secretary for a temp agency. Twenty years (plus or minus a few) later Baker is once again infested with little Dons, adding a whole new meaning to the award Baker House Lush.

It's thursday night the first day of classes and the 1-4 (oh no, it's the EXECON!) bells are ringing. It's time to drag yourselves away from the books (ha-ha), boys and girls. Why? It's time for ... the budget meeting (ugh). Prez Alec is already there, asking for money for his have-a-beer- with-the-president-night. Jen, our VPRO, is sitting patiently, budget written up already - organized as usual. Organization - what a concept! Here comes Henry the VPIR with our milk and cookies ☺. Who's that? Why it's Mikey Morgan, Judcomm chairman, whose budget actually hit 3 digits this term! (Notice the ear-to-ear grin) Next is Dean, athletic chairman, whose budget starts as big as social's and ends... well... just ends. Get a clue Dean! Here comes Eric, VPFS, looking for duct tape. Someone help Pat. He's very weighted down with the treasury books. No, pat, we're not out of money. What are you talking about? Strolling in last as usual it's Tim and Sam Social. Stay tuned for which gets the ----- award next. I guess I forgot myself, but I'm too busy trying to get my pen to stop blotting. Have a question?

Here's where to find us:

Alec Jessiman, President -621

Eric Eileras, VPFS - 318

Jen Lund, VPRO - 230

Henry Houh, VPIR - 519

Mike Morgan, Judcomm - 227

Sam Druker, Social -630

Tim Sulzbach, Social - 519

Pat Goshtigian, Treasurer - 316

And the hunt for real jobs continues . . .

Now for the good part.

Once upon a time, not too very long ago (all of this is purely hypothetical, of course. The people in this story bear absolutely NO resemblance to real life.) there lived a moderately happy little kingdom way up high in the sky (i.e. not on the first floor). These people suffered under the rule of the benevolent sot King Don. King Don had his good points, but since the narrator can't remember them right now, let it suffice to say that King Don forced his subjects to get sloshed every Thursday night and listen to his awful singing.

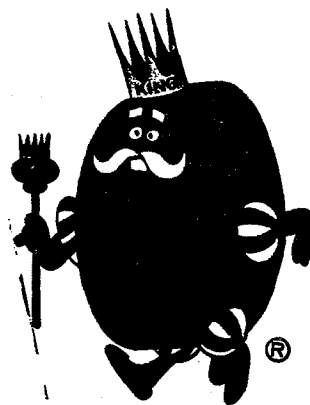

Anyway, the people of the kingdom kind of began to object to this, so they appealed to the brave knight Ring Ding Jr. to lead them to a co-op. No! I mean lead them in a coup. Now, let it be known that Ring Ding Jr. couldn't find his way out of a box (but no one said that said subjects were very bright either); nevertheless he accepted the challenge. A small complication soon arose in that Ring Ding's evil, arrogant, power-hungry next door neighbor, Ding Dong, became jealous and wanted to lead the battle. However, Ring Ding, a self-proclaimed godlike soccer player, soon took care of this small, insignificant, trivial, etc. problem by pushing Ding Dong over during an IK (that's intra-kingdom) game and spraining both of Ding Dong's ankles.

Ring Ding rounded up a few of the other clowns in the kingdom (the court jester, a minstrel, a few of the "ladies-in-waiting" (and waiting, and waiting), the court yuppie, a theologian and various others) to do battle. The plan was to get King Don excessively drunk the following Thursday night and then push him through a second story window onto the ledge far below. Unfortunately, the jester was off juggling devil sticks, the minstrel was giving one or another of the ladies a back massage, the court yuppie had gone out for Chinese food (the theologian usually orders in), and just about everybody else was hung over. Pretty typical.

So Ring Ding had to go it alone. What a contest, huh? Who won this dreadful duo? I mean, duel? I don't know. (I also don't particularly care, as I'm sure you don't either.) Perhaps they're drinking still.
